

April 18/Day 108

- Once again there are several beautiful Psalms here. I don't want to break the flow by picking them about in-between verses. Read them through with these thoughts in mind: What is David saying? How does he say he feels? How does his perspective change from the opening of the Psalm to the ending of the Psalm? Is there a difference? What do you learn about David's character? His faith? And, most importantly, what do you learn about God, His sovereignty, His character, and His ways? If you're keeping a journal on what you learn about God, you are developing your own systematic theology. The Holy Spirit is your teacher.

Psalm 17

Verses 1-15

Psalm 35

Verses 1-28

Psalm 54

Verses 1-28

Psalm 63

Verses 1-11

- Does it seem like sometimes David falters in his faith?
- Does he sometimes feel like God isn't there or isn't moving on his behalf?
- How does rehearsing God's acts on our behalf in the past help our faith?
- How does rehearsing God's character and ways help our faith?
- How does knowing the truth about God from His word help our faith?
- How do we apply this to our lives?

See you tomorrow.
